Food supply. Ontario producers face harvest blighted by one of the worst dry spells in living memory

MILA PETKOVIC
London@metronews.ca

By the numbers

- Canadians spend 11.8 per cent of our incomes on food. In the United States and Sweden, it's 13 per cent. In Egypt, it's 20 per cent, and in China it's 39 per cent.

Source: Statistics Canada

Farmers in the U.S. Midwest are not the only ones affected by drought, which economists say could cause food prices to rise by as much as three to four per cent next year.

Ontario farmers are experiencing the same crisis with their soybean, corn and wheat crops.

"It's disheartening," said Mark Brock of Shepherd Creek Farms in Huron County. "You are going out to save a crop that started out to be phenomenal, and watching it wither away through the summer. Even two or three days of rain won't bring back some areas."

One provincial official says he's never seen anything like it.

"We haven't had a drought like this in my lifetime," said John Cowan, vice-president of strategic development of Grain Farmers of Ontario.

Many Ontario farmers already sold parts of their crops at reduced prices this year because the United States was expected to produce such a large harvest, says Jeff Davis of K and R Davis Farms, northeast of St. Thomas.

Because of the dry spell, Davis, and many Ontario farmers like him, could be forced to take crop-insurance relief, which provides some coverage in case of bad yields. Davis is taking a small insurance payout on his wheat crop this year.

As if the drought weren't bad enough, some farmers are also grappling with a pest problem brought about the dry conditions.

"Spider mites," Davis said. "They take the juice and put the crop under more stress. If they get bad enough, the yield can be significantly reduced. We are trying to decide whether we should be spraying or not."

Brock says his crops are dry, but surviving. He is banking on rain in August and hopes for an average yield.

Last week, Ontario asked the federal government to allow farmers affected by the drought to apply for tax breaks and financial aid earlier than usual.

Domi's first Team Canada experience. Busy time for international Knights

By being named to Team Canada's under-18 squad, the son of legendary NHL pugilist Tie Domi has checked off one hockey milestone his dad can't stake claim to.

"Hockey season comes a little earlier this year," Max Domi told Metro after the freshly-chosen Canadian team finished a Tuesday morning workout at Toronto's Mastercard Centre.

The 17-year-old is set to don the Maple Leaf overseas next week, with the 2012 Ivan Hlinka Tournament in the Czech Republic and Slovakia. One of his London Knights teammates, Bo Horvat, will also make the trip to Europe.

Domi, a 21-goal scorer in his rookie OHL campaign last year, is considered by many scouting services to be of early first-round quality for the 2013 NHL draft.

That distinction doesn't appear to be giving the Toronto native a big head, however.

"Whatever I'm asked to do, I'll do," the natural centreman said of his pre-tournament mentality. "If that's playing wing — playing defence even — then I'm prepared to do that."

The star-studded roster, which features the potential first-overall pick in next year's draft, Nathan MacKinnon, flies out on Wednesday. Domi says they'll work on systems and "get to know each other better" leading up to the tournament opener versus Switzerland on Monday.

Two other Knights, defencemen Olli Maatta and Scott Harrington, as well as unsigned 2012 import draft pick Nikolai Prokhorkin, are at under-20 summer selection camps right now.

Russian Prokhorkin and Canadian Harrington will face each other four times over a six-day span during the annual Canada-Russia Challenge, which kicks off in Yaroslavl, Russia, on Thursday and Friday, before concluding in Halifax next Monday and Tuesday.

Maatta, on the other hand, is in Lake Placid, N.Y., participating in a challenge of his own. He and his Finnish comrades are being tested by the U.S. and Sweden in a series of world junior championship tune-up games. The OHL play-offs hero is reportedly wearing the C for Team Finland while stateside.

Alex Broadhurst, one of London's 2012 second-round choices and a 2011 Chicago Blackhawks pick, was released by the U.S. world junior team on Tuesday. JOHN MATISZ/METRO

With giant grins cemented onto their faces, Jordan Ayris and Tom Owens lingered around London on Tuesday, lugging the Premier Development League championship trophy everywhere they went.

The two England natives — Ayris from Bicester, Owens from Liverpool — were crucial contributors to the Forest City London Blues' 2-1 victory in Greensboro, N.C., on Saturday.

Take John Lennon's Imagine, a minimal song with piano and a little bit of bass, but then imagine 45 string instruments start to play along ... flutes, oboes, clarinets, bassoons, and horns chime in, creating a rich symphonic sound.

Jeans 'n Classics is a London-based company that takes rock, pop and classic rock favourites like Led Zeppelin and Queen, and weaves them into orchestral productions, with 60 to 70 people on stage performing as opposed to a handful.

"I've always liked all those instruments, all those layers of sounds and all those colours," said Peter Brennan, head of the 18-year-old touring company, which recently parted ways with Orchestra London to pursue a new project.

And the championship glow has yet to diminish.

"Any player in the continent would have tried to slam it home," Owens, a 20-year-old midfielder for FC London, said of striker Ayris. "But he showed his incredible touch around the goalkeeper and finished it."

Ayris, who attends Fairfield University in Connecticut on a scholarship, capped off a nine-goal rookie regular season by notching the most historic marker in franchise history. The goal clinched the fourth and final win required to capture the 2012 PDL crown, the first for the 2008-founded club.

"There's 73 teams in the league, 16 teams make the playoffs, and then to win our last four games on very good, come-from-behind performances — I don't think you can get much better than that," FC London head coach Martin Painter said.

This recruitment season will represent the Blues' first real opportunity to mingle with the PDL's top players.

"It's already begun," Painter said about preparations for the 2013 season. "We've already started talking to some players we'd like back. I expect about half of the team to come back, and we'll be adding to our back end."

Stating they, as a No. 2 seed in the Great Lakes Division, had "nothing to lose" in the post-season, Owens believes the Blues rallied off the no-pressure tag.

"From an outside perspective, I think everyone else put us up as underdogs in all four playoff games. It took the pressure off of us," Ayris added.

FC London's PDL title run

- July 21: 1-0 win over Thunder Bay Chill
- July 22: 2-1 over Michigan Bucks
- July 28: 3-2 over Seattle Sounders
- August 4: 2-1 over Carolina Dynamo

Now the pressure is on FC London. Over the league's 18-year existence, only three teams have managed to win back-to-back PDL titles, all before 2004.

Local voice-over company up for business award

Voices.com. London firm 'helped change the way the whole industry operates'

JOHN MATISZ
john.matisz@metronews.ca

David and Stephanie Ciccarelli's sporadic scribbles serve as a constant reminder of humble beginnings.

"I still have the napkin of where we first jotted down the basic concept of Voices.com at our kitchen table," said David Ciccarelli, enthusiastically chuckling between words.

Voices.com, an all-encompassing voice-over service with a clientele base in the hundreds of thousands, is up for a 2012 Ontario Chamber of Commerce small business of the year award this October.

Along with Hamilton's Carstar and Kitchener's Miovision, Voices.com is a candidate to take home the trophy and some considerable bragging rights. Winning the Ontario award would cap off a pretty incredible year, as the homegrown company has already claimed

Quoted

"We want to expand our global reach."

We're looking at launching our voice-over services in five to 10 languages."

David Ciccarelli, co-founder of Voices.com

the London Chamber's small business of the year award.

Nearly a decade into the entrepreneurial journey with wife Stephanie, 29, the other founder, Ciccarelli's aspirations are as high as ever before. "Long-term, it's a $100-million company with 100 employees," the 33-year-old father of four said, adding the couple has no intentions of moving the tech company out of the Forest City.

So, what's all the fuss about? What's so amazing about Voices.com?

"We kind of helped change the way the whole industry operates," said Andrew Amos, the company's public relations manager. "Essentially, in the old way of doing things, the voice-over industry relied on a time-consuming, expensive process, and we've offered the opposite."

Amos believes Voices.com is in the running for the award partly because of its innovative flare, ability to create local jobs, and community involvement.

Organizationally, this past year has been monumental for Voices.com, with its headquarters moving from a 1,500-square-foot office in Western University's research park to a 6,000-square-foot space downtown. A handful of new employees have been hired in the process.

"It's like when you move out of your parents' house for the first time," Ciccarelli added, talking about how crucial the move was to the expansion of the business.

Its "voice seeker" list currently includes big players in the entertainment industry, such as DreamWorks Animation, Sony, and Microsoft. Its net has been cast far and wide, too, already garnering 100,000 Facebook likes and setting a goal of 1 million by the end of 2013.

McGuinty repeats warning to teachers

Premier Dalton McGuinty is urging Ontario teachers to agree to new contracts before the new school year begins, while warning that he'll do it for them if they refuse.

McGuinty said he's confident teachers will return in September because they know this premier remains absolutely committed to publicly funded education — it's my single greatest priority. That hasn't

"I am very, very confident that the overwhelming majority of teachers understand our financial circumstances," he said Tuesday while visiting a school in Sault Ste Marie.

"They know we are the same government, they know this premier remains absolutely committed to publicly funded education — it's my single greatest priority. That hasn't changed. What has changed is our financial circumstances and we need to be responsible given those changes."

But McGuinty also repeated his warning that he'd recall the legislature this month to impose new contracts if teachers and school boards can't reach local agreements that freeze wages for two years.

Arrests put paragliding in spotlight

Terror from the sky?

Suspects allegedly took lessons, planned to launch aerial attacks

The history of terror plots is filled with unusual schemes, from an underwear bomber to model planes filled with explosives — showing how would-be attackers are constantly hatching ideas to catch authorities by surprise. Now questions are being raised about whether two Russians held on terror charges in Spain were planning to launch airborne attacks on paragliders.

The two Russians took paragliding lessons this year in a southern Spanish region renowned for the sport, authorities said over the weekend. A Turkish engineer also under arrest paid for the lessons.

Spain's Interior Ministry declined comment on whether investigators believe Eldar Magomedov and Mohamed Ankari Adamov were using the paragliding lessons to train for an attack. But analysts said the allegation in court paperwork that they took the lessons is almost certainly a key line of investigation.

"It would be surprising if it is not significant in the investigation given the fact that it is mentioned, and secondly because both of them are doing it," said Magnus Ranstorp, a terror expert at the Swedish National Defence College.

No attacks have been carried out using paragliders, experts said. The chances of success of such a plot would be severely limited by the difficulty handling the gliders over cities, terror and paragliding experts said.

But paragliding was still banned in and around New Delhi during the 2010 Commonwealth Games "to provide security against any sort of terror attacks," said police spokesman Rajan Bhagat.

Air traffic. Losses expected to continue for Air Canada when it reports third-quarter results on Wednesday

Air Canada saw a greater percentage of empty seats on its flights last month compared with a year ago as traffic on Canada's largest airline slipped more than it cut capacity.

The Montreal-based company reported Tuesday that its system load factor for July was 85.9 per cent, down from 86.4 per cent a year ago.

In contrast, Calgary-based rival WestJet Airlines posted a record load factor in July, with improvements in all key performance measures compared with July 2011.

Air Canada's lower load factor came as traffic fell 1.1 per cent and capacity was cut 0.5 per cent compared with a year ago.

Still, the result was "close to last year's record load factor for the same month and underscores our continued disciplined approach to managing capacity," Air Canada president and chief executive Calin Rovinescu said.

Air Canada said the load factor on its U.S. and transatlantic flights dropped to 80.1 per cent and 87.5 per cent respectively, down from 81.2 per cent and 89.5 per cent. Domestic flights improved their load factor to 84 per cent, up from 83.1 per cent a year ago, while flights across the Pacific improved to 91.5 per cent from 91.2 per cent.

Air Canada will report its third-quarter results Wednesday. The airline is expected to lose one cent per share on $3 billion of revenues, compared with a loss of 20 cents per share on $2.9 billion of revenue a year ago, according to analysts polled by Thomson Reuters.

Health care. Pfizer pays $60M in bribery settlement

Pfizer has agreed to pay the federal government $60 million US to settle allegations that its employees bribed doctors and other foreign officials in Europe and Asia to win business and boost sales.

The Securities and Exchange Commission said Tuesday that Pfizer's overseas subsidiaries made illegal payments to health care workers in China, Italy, Russia, Croatia and other Eastern European countries. As early as 2001, Pfizer sales representatives tried to conceal the bribes by recording them as legitimate business expenses for travel, entertainment and marketing purposes, the agency said.

"Pfizer subsidiaries in several countries had bribery so entwined in their sales culture that they offered points and bonus programs to improperly reward foreign officials who proved to be their best customers," said Kara Brockmeyer, chief of SEC's foreign enforcement division.

The Dark Lord, also known as Alexander Lukashenko, the President of Belarus, has expelled the ambassador of the good people, who are in reality employees of a Swedish ad agency who thought the Teddy Bear Invasion would be a good way to get Belarusian oppression of human rights on the news agenda.

It worked. It doesn't hurt that Teddy Bear Terrorists Tomas Mazetti and Hannah Frey look like Swedish movie stars and the teddies are pretty darn cute too, with their little parachutes and placards.

Of course, because this is real life and not a child's fable, everyone is definitely not living happily ever after. Lukashenko is arresting anyone who dares to smile, and, meanwhile, the jails are full of human rights activists and former presidential candidates.

Still, you have to admire the Swedish protest and its simple, child-like charm. In a country where protesters have been arrested just for clapping or ringing their cellphones in unison, you need to be creative to tell a modern story of brutal, systematic oppression.

I know I'm inspired — I'm just about finished the New Adventures of Delta Force Teddy — in which the bears fly to North Korea to infiltrate Kim Jong-un's bedroom to discover the identity of the mystery lady who suddenly turned up at his side.

Stay tuned.

Tomas Mazetti and Hannah Frey show a teddy bear on a parachute as they pose for a photo in Berlin recently. The slogan on the paper fixed to the bear reads: "We support the Belarusian struggle for free speech."

GERO BRELOER/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

I had this great idea for a children's book:

The Dark Lord rules over a country far away. He is very powerful and prevents anyone from speaking out against his government, even though the economy is a mess and the living standard is low. A group called Reporters Without Borders ranks this sad country 154th out of 178 countries in its Press Freedom Index.

One day, good blond people from a magic land hear about the human rights abuses of the Dark Lord, including the death of a human rights activist, and decide to take action. They fly a small plane into the Dark Lord's domain and parachute 1,000 teddy bears calling for free speech, and then escape untouched.

When the Dark Lord finds out, he gets very angry and fires his generals who did nothing, despite boasting of a sophisticated defence system fuelled by treasure that should go to hungry children. But the damage is done. Everyone is laughing at the Dark Lord, who can't even stop an invasion of teddy bears. His mojo is toast.

Imagine my distress when I find out that my story, which is going to allow me to replace J.K. Rowling at the top of the list of Fabulously Wealthy Children's Authors, really happened! And it's still happening.

The Dark Lord, also known as Alexander Lukashenko, the President of Belarus, has expelled the ambassador of the good people, who are in reality employees of a Swedish ad agency who thought the Teddy Bear Invasion would be a good way to get Belarusian oppression of human rights on the news agenda.

A turtle is born ... from plastic

Up-cycled art*Brilliant sculpture made from trash

This enchanting turtle floating in deep azure blue sea is truly unreal — in fact the creature is made entirely from discarded and reclaimed household objects.

Artist Sayaka Ganz's stunning sculptures — which also include a whale, fish, dog and an albatross — measure from half a metre to two and a half metres.

METRO

A knack for recycling

- Plastic passion. Ganz sorts everything plastic — from sunglasses and cutlery to baskets and cooking utensils — into 20 colour groups in her basement. "I have been collecting plastic objects for four years now, and I have about 20 bins of colour-sorted plastics," she said. Some of her items are found in garbage cans, some in charity shops and the rest are donated by friends and relatives.

• Japanese philosophy at heart. Despite now working in Fort Wayne, Ind., Ganz keeps the traditions from her childhood homeland close to her art: "Japanese Shinto beliefs are such that all objects and organisms have spirits, and I was taught in kindergarten that objects that are discarded before their time weep at night inside the trash bin." She added: "My goal is for each object to transcend its origin by being integrated into an animal/organic forms that are alive and in motion."

Artist Sayaka Ganz, 35, hails from Yokohama, Japan.

Jeremy Renner takes over leading man role in the latest Bourne flick. HANDOUT

The Jason Bourne facsimile

Damon relinquishes role. Renner picks up the lead in secret-agent thriller but it's not the first time Bourne has seen changes

The writer reportedly enjoyed the 1988 300-minute, two-part made-for-television movie of The Bourne Identity starring mini-series king Richard Chamberlain in the role Damon later made famous.

Despite a cheeseball love scene between Chamberlain and co-star Jaclyn Smith the TV special (now available on DVD) was a faithful adaptation of the first Bourne novel and even earned its lead actor a Golden Globe nomination.

These days Ludlum would be hard pressed to recognize his character, however.

He wrote the first three Bourne books but after his death the series was kept alive by writer Eric Van Lustbader, who has made slight, but noticeable changes to the character over the course of seven subsequent novels.

Quote

"Damon didn't want to return to the franchise but the studio still wanted another Bourne movie."

Moviegoers may also find themselves a tad confused this weekend when Jeremy Renner takes over the lead from Damon in The Bourne Legacy. Renner, who beat out Jake Gyllenhaal, Michael Fassbender, Taylor Kitsch and Josh Hartnett for the gig, isn't playing Jason Bourne, but a reasonable facsimile — a trained assassin brainwashed into taking part in covert government activities.

In Hollywood they call that expanding "the franchise mythology."

In other words, Damon didn't want to return to the franchise but the studio still wanted another Bourne movie.

Ludlum's books — he wrote 23 thrillers with sales estimated between 290 to 500 million — have also provided the basis for several movies without the name Bourne in the title.

The Osterman Weekend is a confusing movie about a television journalist who becomes convinced his friends are a threat to national security. Ludlum apparently offered to rewrite the perplexing script at no charge, but was rejected by the movie's producers.

The result is an entertaining mess the New York Times said, "has a kind of hallucinatory craziness to it."

More troubles

The Holcroft Covenant was another troubled production.

- Unhappy. Star James Caan walked out the day before filming was to begin, unhappy with the script. His replacement, Michael Caine, carries the espionage story, but the action scenes are more entertaining than the spy story.

- Another movie. In development is the Chancellor Manuscript, Ludlum's story about J. Edgar Hoover's alleged "secret files." Leonardo DiCaprio is rumored to be in talks to star.

New documentary.

ESPN analyze the Terminator's rise and fall and what made him who he is today

AMBER RAY

Metro World News

Take away Terminator. Strip away his governorship. The successes of Arnold Schwarzenegger all boils down to his stint in the Austrian army as a teen, when he won a Mr. Europe bodybuilding championship.

At least, that's the premise of Arnold's Blueprint, the first film in ESPN's new documentary series, 30 for 30 Shorts, premiering Sept. 26. Director Michael Zimbalist (The Two Escobars) focuses on Schwarzenegger's enlistment, the military's initial resistance to his sport, and his rise to Mr. Universe. The lesson: If you have a dream, ignore the naysayers.

"I had never seen a 'no' as a 'no,'" Schwarzenegger told reporters at the Television Critics Association press tour in Beverly Hills, Calif., on Friday. "I always heard 'yes.' And every time someone said it was impossible, I always hear 'It's possible.' So I didn't care what anyone said. To me, it always was positive and it's possible."

From his mother questioning his sexuality to his frank admission of steroid use, Schwarzenegger shared details from that period of his life with critics.

"My mother was always worried because she saw the pictures on my bedroom wall of naked men oiled up, and so she called the house doctor and said, 'Is there something wrong?'" he said.

But it was his battle with the military that was the most baffling.

"The whole concept was so new that it took a lot of effort for me to be heard and for them to pay attention and to say, 'OK. Let's get him weights into the base.'

It wouldn't be the only battle in his life.

"I took steroids. At that point, it was more experimental when I was competing, and then there, of course, there was more and more knowledge, and more research was done. But I think that every sport is trying everything that they can, including bodybuilding ... to get rid of the drugs."

ParaNorman celebrates the unconventional

ParaNorman. Off the wall children's film embracing some unorthodox approaches to making animated movies

scene@metronews.ca

Computer wizardry takes a back seat in the upcoming children's flick, ParaNorman.

Instead of dazzling computer-generated images, if you look really closely, you might notice that the globules of spit flying from one of the movie's many zombies are actually little balls of dried glue mounted on a wire.

And you surely won't be able to detect that Norman's chubby friend's belly is lifted up and down with an Allen key to make it appear to jiggle as he runs, through stop-motion technology.

Yes, the makers of this high-budget film are making use of the same tool as Ikea shoppers worldwide.

"We work in unorthodox ways," says producer Ariane Sutner.

The Portland-based Laika studio also made the 2009 children's film Coraline, which was nominated for an Academy Award in the animated feature category.

"We're working very hands-on, with over 300 artists working with very traditional tools — paint, and glue and hammers," she explains.

It's not that computers

ParaNorman opens in theatres Aug. 17. HANDOUT are absent. But they are used in service of the more tactile side of the production. The thousands of facial expressions that Norman and his fellow characters display are designed digitally. Instead of being rendered out for the film, though, they're printed using 3-D printers and attached to the puppets with magnets.

"The process of printing has an imperfection to it. And once real light hits that, it becomes something else entirely," says writer and co-director Chris Butler.

"You still can't beat just natural photography," Sam Fell, the movie's other co-director, agrees.

Norman has approximately 32,000 faces that fit onto his 28 bodies. Animators then meticulously position the puppets on sets to take a picture of every single frame in the movie — 24 for every second of film. It's not unusual for them to spend an entire day shooting less than a second's worth of footage.

The movie's about a boy who's different. He sees zombies and ghosts, and he's the target of schoolyard bullies as a result. It's a comedy and a horror-film satire, and celebrates the unconventional.

It opens Aug. 17.

universities to stay in

University of Victoria

Price: $47.20 for a single bed

Average price for hotel: $199

This picturesque city is a must-see for all Canadians, but staying near the inner harbour is pricey. The school is located about 20 minutes from downtown, and the price is right. The best part about staying here? They also throw in breakfast. Apartment-style units with four bedrooms and two bathrooms are also available for $160 per night.

The University of Victoria offers a variety of options, and includes breakfast. FLICKR: ALEJANDRO ERICKSON

University of Prince Edward Island

Price: $53 for a single room, $69 for a double

Average price for hotel: $179

Minutes from downtown Charlottetown, guests who stay in the residence are treated to free parking as well as bed linen and towel exchange. Want to take a dip in the ocean? The beach is a 20-minute drive away.

Just 20 minutes from the beach, the University of Prince Edward Island also has free parking. HANDBOUT

Carleton University

Price: $72.32 per person, includes taxes and all-you-can-eat buffet breakfast

Average price for hotel: $118

The nation's capital is popular during the summer and staying at Carleton is a great option for the budget-wise. Halfway between the airport and downtown, the school is close to shopping, galleries and museums. Guests who stay here also have access to the school's athletic facilities (including an Olympic-sized pool) for a small fee.

Becoming an office Olympian

Work to win. Channel the athlete's outlook in every day life

As London is alive with athletes embracing the Olympic motto and going faster, higher and stronger, the work force is alive with employees practicing these same strategies for success.

Workplace competition is inescapable these days, what with interns fighting for that one available position, and everyone and their brother hoping for a promotion. Donovan Bailey is a pro at going for the gold. You can be too – and you can do it in the most professional and appropriate way possible.

Recognize the importance of training

Every week you should be analyzing your performance. Did you meet your targets? Where and why did you fall short? Evaluating your performance and taking steps to improve — whether it be embarking upon further training courses or practicing some basic strategies — is going to help you become the strongest employee you can be.

Overcome obstacles

Every athlete has to learn how to pick themselves up after a setback. That high jump bar you just can't clear? The hurdle you keep knocking over? Athletes need to keep their eye on the prize in order to keep going when the going gets tough.

Similarly, we face obstacles in the workplace as well. Not getting the promotion you wanted. Being rejected from a job you thought you had in the bag. Keeping your eyes on your ultimate goal and focusing your attention on what steps you can take to get there will help you find yourself on the workplace podium sooner rather than later.

Push yourself

Preparing for the Olympics is an insane time commitment. You eat, sleep and breathe Olympic training. Therefore, maintaining focus and working towards constant improvement is your key to success. At work, it is easy to fall victim to doing positions can get heated as they fall under the pressure of trying to prove themselves. Standing out is one thing. Doing it maliciously is quite another. Although it's natural to want to win, remember that you are on a team. Do your best, but not at the expense of others.

Be a lover not a fighter

Nothing says Canadian pride like your whole house crowding around the TV and cheering on our Olympians. Not only that, but the athletes who are competing are just as supportive of each other and just as eager to cheer each other on. At work, embrace the idea of being a team and supporting your peers. Rooting for others will encourage them to do the same for you (and make them want to work more closely with you!).

Olympian's story of social slip-up important for all hires to hear

TalentEgg.ca

After years of training and preparation, it took less than 140 characters to dash Greek track athlete Voula Papachristou's Olympic dreams.

The young triple-jump champion was booted from the London 2012 Summer Olympic Games roster after she posted a tasteless tweet about Africans and the West Nile virus, sparking an uproar on social media.

While only a select few get to be professional athletes and partake in the Olympics, this situation speaks to an issue that is common among all of us: social media can have serious repercussions for your career — a lesson that Papa-

Manage your brand

- Outside of maintaining a professional persona with the content that you're putting out, it's also important to keep tabs on what others are posting about you. You may not be posting photos from last night's party, but if your friends are, then employers can still find them.

- Monitoring your online presence shouldn't just be a priority when you're on the job hunt, says Brady. It needs to be an ongoing activity. Keep track of what you're saying online and what other people are saying about you to avoid any uncomfortable discussions with current and future employers.

To be sure that you don't have to endure the same lesson, Robert Half Division Director Chris Brady has some tips and advice for job seekers and young professionals using social media.

Remember your audience

"Your social profile when you're in college or university can be very different than what it should be when you're out in the workforce," says Brady. When you're posting on social media, it's important to remember that you're not on campus anymore. What you post, tweet and upload is available to a much wider network of people than just your immediate network of friends. The web is much larger than that. Current and prospective employers are in that mix.

Be aware of the impression that you make online, he says. Even though LinkedIn is the 'Facebook of business,' companies can still lurk around your other social networks to get a sense of who you are.

Amp up your security

If you've racked up years of unflattering party photos or awkward high school banter that you'd rather your current or future boss not see, the easiest solution is to adjust your privacy settings.

Each social media site has help features to explain how to share without sharing with the wrong people. Keeping your social networks private is a quick way to manage your online brand if you don't have time to professionalize your accounts.

Pause before you post

When you have a great tweet or status update, it can be tempting to get it out to the cyber sphere as quickly as possible. But stop a moment and think. This message is potentially going out to more than just your network of friends so you better make sure that it is what you want to say. Check your spelling, check your grammar and, above all, check your content.

Brady says, if you're posting something that employers could find, ask yourself: "Would I stand up in a conference room and make that comment?" If the answer is no, such as in the case of Papachristou's tweet, then don't hit send.

Though you can delete posts off your feed or account, you can never fully erase them. "The information that you put out there once you hit that button is out there for good," says Brady.

But Mikhail Kukushkin of Kazakhstan defeated Dancevic 6-3, 7-5 in a first-round Rogers Cup match on Tuesday.

Kukushkin, 24, ranked 69th in the world, will play Richard Gasquet of France in Round 2.

Dancevic, 27, a native of Niagara Falls, Ont., is trying to resurrect a career that had him ranked 65th in the world at one stage. He entered the Rogers Cup as a wild card, ranked 123.

"I've had a pretty rough year this year battling injuries and stuff," he said after Tuesday's match. "My confidence this year started getting better last week. I started playing really well and I made the semifinals in Vancouver."

But as well as he played last week, it was a different story on Tuesday.

"Arriving here late and adjusting, I found it a little difficult... I was very tentative, very afraid of what was going to happen if I would get hurt again and be out again."

On Tuesday afternoon, Juan Monaco of Argentina defeated Vasek Pospisil of Vancouver 7-5, 6-4.

set, he was competitive in the second until Kukushkin broke his service to go ahead 6-5.

"Physically I feel good," Dancevic said. "My back is good, knock on wood. The last three tournaments I've played I haven't felt any pain or anything serious."

Things weren't so good this year before that.

"When I was playing well ... I felt like my confidence just skyrocketed," he said. "Then, bam, I was out three months, it happened so suddenly. I just like popped ligaments and I was out. It kind of scared me."

"Coming back and starting to train again was really difficult... I was very tentative, very afraid of what was going to happen if I would get hurt again and be out again."

Rest not an option for Azarenka

It's been a hectic time for Victoria Azarenka, but it has not kept the world's top-ranked women's tennis player away from the women's Rogers Cup.

Azarenka arrived in Montreal on Tuesday from the London Olympics, where she won bronze in singles and then gold in mixed doubles with Belarus compatriot Max Mirnyi.

"It's not easy to regroup mentally because you want to celebrate a bit, but you have no time," Azarenka said Tuesday. "But I'm happy to be here."

Pitching prognosis gets worse for Jays

Drew Hutchison pitches in Toronto in June. CARLOS OSORIO/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

The Blue Jays will have to do without rookie right-hander Drew Hutchison a lot longer than expected, with word coming down Tuesday that the 21-year-old will undergo season-ending Tommy John surgery.

Typical recovery time for the reconstructive elbow operation is at least a year, meaning he will miss most — if not all — of the 2013 season.

When Hutchison left his start on June 15 with pain in his right elbow — becoming the third Jays' starter to suffer a serious injury in just four games — his ailment was originally classified as a "sprained," rather than torn, elbow ligament. The Jays believed he would escape surgery.

Manager John Farrell said then that Hutchison's injury was "clearly" less severe than Kyle Drabek's — suffered a day earlier — for which there was consensus on the need for surgery. There was talk of Hutchison rejoining the starting rotation before the end of the season.

But after nearly two months of rest, rehab and deliberation with his family, Hutchison will join Drabek on the long road to recovery — except now he's two months behind.

TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Surgery schedule

The Jays say Hutchison, 21, will have his surgery performed by Dr. James Andrews in Pensacola, Fla.

- Toronto right-hander Dustin McGowan, 30, will also visit Andrews on Wednesday and is scheduled for arthroscopic surgery to evaluate his right shoulder joint on Thursday.

- McGowan has had shoulder surgeries in 2008 and 2010. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Drouin overcame injury to leap to an Olympic bronze

High jump. Three-time NCAA champion wins Canada's first medal in high jump since 1976

A year ago at this time, Derek Drouin was barely walking, let alone leaping.

The 22-year-old from Cornwall, Ont., had suffered a Lisfranc fracture, a gruesome foot injury that has ended the careers of countless athletes, and one that his doctor warned may keep him off Canada's Olympic team.

Certainly no one watching Tuesday night would have guessed that as he captured bronze in the men's high jump, Canada's first track and field medal at the London Olympics and its first in the event since Greg Joy's silver at the 1976 Montreal Games.

"That was the amazing thing," said his coach Joel Skinner, a high school teacher in Sarnia. "He struggled with it, got over it, was determined, came back from it. He has come back from this Lisfranc fracture to win an Olympic medal and a lot of people need to know about that because it's just an amazing feat."

Drouin finished in a three-way tie with Britain's Robert Grabarz and Qatar's Mutaz Essa Barshim. All three cleared 2.29 metres without any misses then missed three attempts at 2.33 metres.

Ivan Ukhov of Russia won the gold with a jump of 2.38 metres while American Erik Kynard took silver with 2.33.

Mike Mason of Nanoose Bay, B.C., was eighth with 2.29, narrowly missing on one of his attempts at 2.33 metres that would have put him in the medals.

Drouin, a three-time NCAA champion, suffered the injury in March 2011 when he planted his right takeoff foot an odd way. The mid-foot injury results when the metatarsals bones are displaced.

"My doctor made it very clear that if I was going to qualify (for London) it was going to be very, very tight. The rehab was extensive, it was very long," Drouin said.

Ilya Zakharov of Russia scored 104.50 points on his last dive to win the three-metre springboard at the London Olympics, spoiling China's bid to sweep all eight diving events.

Zakharov totalled 555.90 points in the six-round final Tuesday night. Qin Kai of China took the lead into the last round, but he settled for silver at 541.75.

He Chong, the defending champion and Qin's teammate, earned the bronze at 524.15.

Alexandre Despatie of Laval, Que., finished 11th in his final Olympics.

"My objective this year was to compete at my fourth Olympics," said the 27-year-old, who suffered a serious injury in training in June. "I had a lot of roadblocks on the way and I pushed myself to the limit to get there."

Russians reprove dominance in duet

Natalia Ishchenko and Svetlana Romashina extended Russia's domination of synchronized swimming with an Olympic gold medal in duet on Tuesday.

The Russians improved on their free score from the prelims, finishing with a total of 197.100 points. They haven't lost an Olympic synchro event since the 1996 Atlanta Games.

The only real drama was for silver, which went to Spain's Ona Carbonell and Andrea Fuentes with 192.900 after a lively, Tango-themed routine that had the crowd at the Aquatics Centre clapping along nearly the whole way.

China's Huang Xuechen and Liu Ou finished third with 192.870.

Whitfield bows out of race after crash on bike

Triathlon. Former gold medalist fails to finish competition in what could be his last Olympic appearance

Canada's Simon Whitfield talks to reporters after crashing in the men's triathlon on Tuesday.

SEAN KILPATRICK/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Simon Whitfield intended to throw a final haymaker in his fourth Olympic triathlon. He didn't get beyond cocking his fist.

Within seconds of getting onto his bike, the 37-year-old crashed spectacularly in a freak accident Tuesday at the London Games and couldn't continue.

Whitfield watched Britain's Alistair Brownlee win gold from the medical tent while he received stitches in his toe and treatment for other assorted hurts.

The Olympic champion of 2000 and silver medallist of 2008 may have been a medal longshot in London, but he'd invested heavily in one last go at the podium.

Whitfield's chin dropped to his chest while speaking of the time away from wife Jennie and their two young daughters

Pippa Katherine and Evelyn.

When he met with his family under the grandstand, he said five-year-old Pippa Katherine had a bouquet of maple leaves for him.

"My breakdown moment was seeing my wife because I know how much Jennie puts into this and we're a team and she's put in so much sacrifice being at home a lot alone," Whitfield said.

"It was hard to see my daughter upset, my wife upset and I was pretty upset. That means it means something doesn't it?"

Spaniard Javier Gomez earned silver and Brownlee's younger brother Jonathan took bronze. It wasn't a banner day for the Canadian team. Kyle Jones of Oakville, Ont., was disappointed in his 25th-place finish. Victoria's Brent McMahon was 27th.

Meet Ford's new Prius fighter

ALL PHOTOS WHEELBASE

Spacious

The level of cargo space in the C-MAX is about equal to that of the Toyota Prius v, but offers nearly one-third more room than its chief rival with the rear seat folded flat.

As you would expect from its shape, the interior offers adult-sized head, knee and legroom.

2013 Ford C-MAX

- Type: Four-door, front-wheel-drive hatchback hybrid.
- Engines (hp): 2.0-litre DOHC four-cylinder and electric motor (188).
- Mileage: L/100 km (city/hwy) 4.2/4.6 (base, est.).
- Base Price (incl. destination): $27,500 (est.).

Dashboard

What will really impact buyers is the flight-deck-style dashboard and control panel that would look at home in the Starship Enterprise.

The gauge pod boasts a brake coach that helps drivers maximize the regenerative braking system to help keep the lithium-ion batteries topped up.

Powertrain

Driving efficiency is a certainty with the C-MAX and C-MAX Energi plug-in hybrid powertrains, both of which will be available in the 2013 Ford Fusion sedan.

The gasoline component is a 2.0-litre four-cylinder that produces 141 horsepower. It works in tandem with a 106-horsepower (estimated) electric motor.

Ford projects a net system output of 188 horsepower, which is 54 horsepower more than the competing Prius v.

Power is directed to the front wheels by a continuously variable transmission (CVT). Even with the extra power, Ford expects the C-Max to achieve a better fuel economy rating than the Prius v.

Review. A hybrid with economy, power, room and a good starting price? You bet

MALCOLM GUNN
Wheelbase Media

When you think "hybrid," images of green fields, fluffy white bunnies and the Toyota Prius likely dance around in your head. The Prius has spent most of its life in a category of one, but a decade of success has also made it a sitting duck for companies such as Ford.

But is the new 2013 C-MAX wagon a real Prius fighter where it counts, in terms of fuel consumption? Yes, if you compare it to the least thrifty Prius v, that is. Put head-to-head against the Prius v, it has about the same interior room and quite a bit more power.

The C-MAX arrives this fall as Ford's first dedicated hybrid brand, although it's based on the automaker's compact Focus architecture and has the same distance between the front and rear wheels and overall length as that model. But the C-MAX is more than 10 centimetres wider and 15 centimetres taller, making it ideal for hauling people and their gear.

At an anticipated $27,500, including destination charges (which is slightly less than the Prius v's base starting price) the base C-MAX SE comes with dual-zone climate control, 17-inch alloy wheels and seven airbags. The SEL adds leather seats (heated in front), 10-way power driver's seat, rain-sensing wipers and satellite radio. On the option list is a handsfree back-up parking assist and a power liftgate that opens and closes by shaking your foot beneath the bumper.

Hybrids are becoming more opulent. Leather is on the menu.

There should be no shortage of converts to the C-MAX Hybrid's way of life, with its easy-on-the-eyes appearance, practical nature and easy-on-the-wallet fueling intervals.

Shea Holbrook's got the need for speed

Autopilot

AUTO PILOT

Mike Goetz
drive@metronews.ca

Racecar driver Shea Holbrook didn't grow up in a household locked into any type of car culture orbit. And not until five years or so ago did she even pine for any of the pavement pursuits.

Until then, her prime passion was being dragged around a lake by a boat, an activity sometimes called "competitive water skiing."

So what happened? Why did she trade her skis for a helmet and a fire-retardant racing suit?

Why is there currently a race-prepped 2012 Honda Civic Si HFP with her name on it, and currently sitting in third place in her class (Touring Car) on the SCAA World Challenge Pro Racing circuit?

When she was 16, Holbrook and her father decided to take in the Richard Petty Experience, where NASCAR fans get behind the wheel of a race car for a day. After that she switched gears, so to speak.

"I'm a huge adrenaline junkie," says Holbrook, adding that car racing gives her what she needs, and is unlike anything else out there when it comes to adrenaline production.

"When I put my racing suit on, I have to calm myself down. It's all about the thrill."

We're chatting under a temporary tent at the Niagara Drive Centre, which is more or less the back runways of the Niagara International Airport.

Holbrook is here to take journalists out for a ride in her race-prepped Civic, as part of a press event for the new Civic Si HFP. The Florida native's race car is campaigned by Toronto-based Compass 360Racing.

It's easy to see why Honda Canada, SCCA racing, her team and her sponsors are eager for her to meet the media. She's a well-spoken, engaging ambassador for her racing partners, for racing in general, and for her gender.

Competitive racecar driver Shea Holbrook is ranked third in her class. MIKE GOETZ/METRO

She knows she's getting attention for being a young female in a male-dominated sport, but she also completely understands that attention and/or gender won't make her car go any faster.

"The cool thing about car racing is that the car doesn't know the gender of the driver, or how tall or how short they are," she said.

"It's one of the few sports where women and men can go head to head. It comes down to who is smarter, who is more talented, who has the experience, who is more determined, who is one with the race car."

And she's more than willing to pay her dues.

"I like the fight. A lot of people say (female drivers) have to overcome all these obstacles and struggles. I don't like it when people say they're in a struggle. If it's your passion you don't really look at it like a struggle. Everyone has obstacles to overcome, to get to where you want to be."

She says that success in motorsports is particularly hard to come by, so a little extra obstacle to overcome here and there along your career might actually be useful — to harden and sharpen the resolve.

Horoscopes

♈ Aries

March 21 - April 20

You must put a fight behind you and join forces with someone whose help you are going to need in the weeks to come. If you have to meet certain challenges alone, you might not succeed.

♉ Taurus

April 21 - May 21

You may think you can get away with anything, but that is not an excuse to do as you please at other people's expense. Think ahead to how your actions might affect your long-term reputation.

♊ Gemini

May 22 - June 21

The more of an effort you make now, the more opportunities will come your way in the near future. With Mercury, your ruler, moving in your favour again, now is the time to make plans. The bigger the plans, the better.

♋ Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Today's cosmic picture makes it easy for you to make new alliances. You may think you don't need other people but you do, more than you realize. Besides, there is a joy to working with others that solitary effort can't match.

♌ Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

You seem to have gotten your mind stuck in a groove and are finding it hard to move on. What you need now is a change of attitude. Look at your life from a wider perspective.

♍ Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

Everyone is singing your praises at the moment but you don't seem to have much confidence in yourself. However, now that your ruling planet Mercury is moving direct again you will soon rediscover your self-belief.

♎ Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

You may not want to say what you have to say but you must say it anyway. Does that make sense? Okay, put it this way: if you don't speak truth to power you'll be the one who loses money. Got it?

♏ Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

An old idea will get you thinking along new and profitable lines over the next 24 hours. It may be an idea that has been used many times before but your twist on it could make you a million!

♐ Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

Stop feeling sorry for yourself and start thinking about how you can make the best of the opportunities you've been given. They are all around you if you take the trouble to look. Life is full of possibilities.

♑ Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Make sure that you are the one who profits from your ideas. Mercury, planet of the mind, will give you plenty of insights but it is what you do with them that matters. Action is essential.

♒ Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

If you are having second thoughts about an agreement of some kind, you can probably get out of it today. There will be a price to be paid, of course, but it will be worth it. Reclaim your freedom.

♓ Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

The whole world seems to be singing your praises and it's quite right that you feel proud about what you have achieved. But don't lose sight of the fact that it's only a beginning. Everything is up for grabs. SALLY BROMPTON

Formerly Saturn of London

We've been with the Collins Family since 2000

when we bought our first Saturn.

We have purchased many vehicles from them over the past 12 years. Initially we knew little about the Suzuki line of vehicles.

We took part in the Ultimate Driving Event and we were blown away. We are now the proud owners of not 1 but 2 Kizashi AWDs.
